Objective

The Fund's objective is to achieve a total return greater than that of the NSCI (XIC) over the long term by investing in a diversified portfolio of small UK quoted companies.

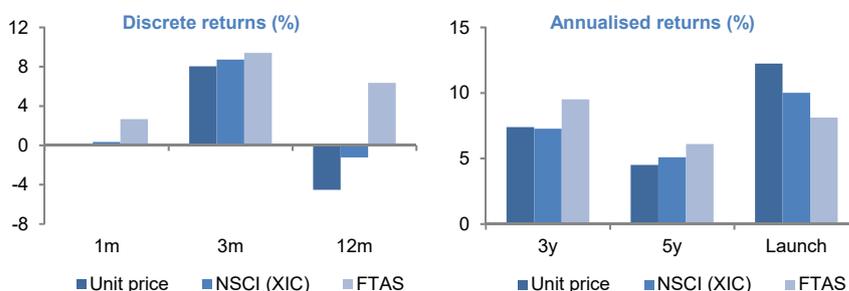

Investment style: Value

Aberforth are value investors who buy shares in companies that they calculate to be selling below their intrinsic value. This is determined through detailed financial and industrial analysis, combined with a valuation approach that focuses on both stockmarket and corporate worth.

Investment performance (annualised total returns)

Growth (%)	1m	3m	12m	3y	5y	Launch

Investment commentary

As central banks turned dovish, the first quarter of 2019 delivered strong equity returns, in contrast to the pain of the fourth quarter. The NSCI (XIC) generated a total return of 0.3% in March, which lagged the FTSE All-Share's return of 2.7%: the outperformance of traditional defensive sectors and US dollar sensitive companies was more helpful for larger companies. The Fund generated a return of 0.2%, influenced by another poor month for value investing.

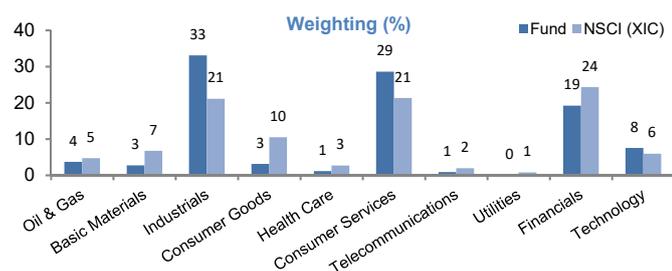

The largest loser was annuity provider Just Group. The company announced the raising of additional equity capital and no final dividend in respect of 2018. Although results were acceptable, the tension between maximising growth and achieving capital self-sufficiency remains. Software translation company SDL delivered strong results but succumbed to profit taking, reversing some of the previous month's strong performance. PR company Huntsworth reported higher sales and profits but the share price was affected by concerns regarding poor cash conversion.

Among the winners were holdings that reported strong results. These included electronic components manufacturer TT Electronics, recruiter Robert Walters, global ground engineering business Keller and Ultra Electronics, a specialist electrical and electronics engineering company. More broadly, with the results season nearly concluded, it would appear that 2018 was good in terms of sales and profit progress for small companies, in sharp contrast to the year's lower share prices.

Data sources & calculations

All data supplied by Aberforth, except NSCI (XIC) data (from Numis/Paul Marsh and Elroy Dimson – London Business School) and FTSE data (from FTSE International Limited).

Performance returns are total returns after all expenses and assume reinvestment of dividends. Yield is based on the Fund's trailing 12 months dividends. Active share is a measure of how the Fund's portfolio differs from the NSCI (XIC). Small companies are represented by the NSCI (XIC). Large companies are represented by the FTAS.

Standardised past performance

Discrete total return performance over 12 month periods to 31 March:

Growth (%)	2019	2018	2017	2016	2015
Unit price	-4.5	6.0	22.4	-0.4	1.1
NSCI (XIC)	-1.2	5.2	18.8	4.2	-0.3

Risk warnings

Capital may be at risk as the value of investments may go down as well as up and is not guaranteed; therefore investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance, nor a reliable indicator of future results or performance.

Investments in shares of smaller companies are generally considered to carry a higher degree of risk as the market for their shares may be less liquid than that for shares of larger companies, making shares of smaller companies more difficult to buy and sell.

The performance of shares of smaller companies may be more volatile than the shares of larger companies over short time periods; therefore investors should regard such investments as long term.

There can be no guarantee that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved or provide the returns sought by the Fund.

An investment in the Fund is only suitable for investors who are capable of evaluating the merits and risks of such an investment and who have sufficient resources to be able to bear any losses which may arise from such an investment (which may be equal to the whole amount invested). Such an investment should be regarded as long term in nature and complementary to existing investments in a range of other financial assets and should not form a major part of an investment portfolio.

The dealing spread of the Fund, which represents the difference between the buying and selling prices, will have an impact on the realisable value of any investment made in the Fund, particularly in the short term. To mitigate the impact of capital erosion, investors should regard investments in the Fund as long term.
