Monthly investment commentary: March

After a difficult month in February, equity markets held steady. The FTSE All-Share rose by 1.3%, while the NSCI (XIC) was up by 0.4%. Benign performance on the surface, however, was a function of a windfall for commodity producers, offset by underperformance from companies that are facing the intensifying headwinds of inflationary pressures. The macro-economic outlook is uncertain, with the war in Ukraine and higher energy prices coming against the backdrop of widely expected interest rate rises. In the US, this has resulted in an inversion of the yield curve, which has historically been a reliable indicator of recession.

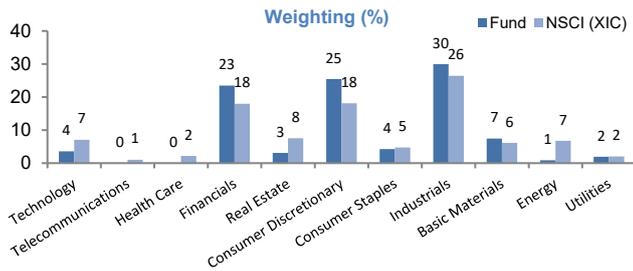

The Fund returned 4.2% in March. The value style was not a significant influence on performance, with M&A and the commodity rally being the main themes behind the Fund's return. A bid for Brewin Dolphin (wealth manager) at a c.60% premium was supportive of the wider wealth management sector, which benefited another portfolio holding, Rathbones. Additionally, McKay Securities (real estate) announced an agreed bid from Workspace, though a counter-offer is not out of the question. Such corporate activity highlights the attractive value proposition of small UK quoted companies to both domestic and overseas acquirers. Meanwhile, Anglo Pacific (mining royalty company) was buoyed by higher commodity prices, while Drax (electricity generation) benefited from higher power prices.

The Fund's holdings have very little sales exposure to Russia and Ukraine. The detractors from performance in March were mostly companies affected by the incremental inflationary pressures and supply chain disruptions emanating from the war in Ukraine. Among these are Reach (newspaper publisher), Vesuvius (metal flow engineering), TI Fluid Systems (auto parts manufacturer) and Bakkavor (food manufacturer).

Gearing

The Fund's Ord shares are geared by the capital entitlement of the ZDP shares which will rise continuously until the planned winding up date of 1 July 2024. The net gearing figure shown in the Key Fund information section is the percentage by which the total value of investments exceeds the total net assets.

Hurdle rates & redemption yields

The Fund's latest hurdle rates and redemption yields are available from the ZDP Analytics section of the AIC website at www.theaic.co.uk.

Data sources & calculations

All data supplied by Aberforth, except NSCI (XIC) data (from Numis/Paul Marsh and Elroy Dimson – London Business School) and FTSE data (from FTSE International Limited).

Performance returns are total returns after all expenses and assume reinvestment of dividends. Yield is based on the Fund's trailing 12 months' dividends (excluding Specials). Active share is a measure of how the Fund's portfolio differs from the NSCI (XIC). Small companies are represented by the NSCI (XIC). Large companies are represented by the FTAS.

Risk warnings

Investments in shares of smaller companies are generally considered to carry a higher degree of risk as the market for their shares may be less liquid than that for shares of larger companies, making shares of smaller companies more difficult to buy and sell.

The performance of shares of smaller companies may be more volatile than the shares of larger companies over short time periods; therefore investors should regard such investments as long term.

There can be no guarantee that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved or provide the dividends and returns sought by the Fund.

An investment in the Fund is only suitable for investors who are capable of evaluating the merits and risks of such an investment and who have sufficient resources to be able to bear any losses which may arise from such an investment (which may be equal to the whole amount invested). Such an investment should be regarded as long term in nature and complementary to existing investments in a range of other financial assets and should not form a major part of an investment portfolio.

An investment trust is a public limited company, the shares of which are traded on the Main Market of the London Stock Exchange. Accordingly, the ability of shareholders to sell their shares will be dependent on the market price of the shares. The shares may trade at a discount or premium to their net asset value.

Investment trusts may borrow money in order to make further investments. This is known as gearing. The effect of gearing can enhance returns to shareholders in rising markets but will have the opposite effect on returns in falling markets.

The Fund's Ordinary shares (Ords) are geared by the Zero Dividend Preference shares (ZDPs) and rank for repayment of capital after the ZDPs and any creditors of the Fund. A positive net asset value for the Ords will be dependent upon the Fund's assets being sufficient to meet the prior capital entitlements of the holders of the ZDPs. The Ords should therefore be regarded as carrying above average risk. The ZDPs are not a protected or guaranteed investment. In particular, should the Fund be wound up prior to its planned winding up date, holders of ZDPs would only receive their accrued capital entitlement to the date of winding up - which would be less than the final anticipated capital entitlement of the ZDPs.
