Objective

The Fund's objective is to provide Ordinary (Ord) shareholders with a high level of income, with the potential for income and capital growth, and to provide Zero Dividend Preference (ZDP) shareholders with a pre-determined final capital entitlement of 127.25p per ZDP share on the planned winding up date of 1 July 2024.

It is the Directors' current intention that, in the absence of unforeseen circumstances, the Fund will declare dividends totalling not less than 4 pence per Ord share in respect of the initial period to 30 June 2018. Full details of the Fund's Dividend Policy are available at www.aberforth.co.uk.

Investment style: Value

Aberforth are value investors who buy shares in companies that they calculate to be selling below their intrinsic value. This is determined through detailed financial and industrial analysis, combined with a valuation approach that focuses on both stockmarket and corporate worth.

Investment performance

In accordance with the rules of the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA), investment performance information will be shown here once the Fund has a full 12-month period of performance history.

Investment commentary

UK indices were weak in February, consistent with the other global markets. Large companies, represented by the FTSE All-Share, generated a total return of -3.3% and the NSCI (XIC) returned -3.2%. Size factors mattered little over the month, but style data showed value trailing growth.

There was a notable revival in corporate activity in the small company universe. This benefited travel management company Hogg Robinson, whose share price responded positively to the news of a bid from American Express, together with the parallel sale of their expense management business to Visa. Elsewhere, the market responded well to a change of chief executive at communications and IT services provider KCOM. Education technology provider RM revealed improved results and acquisition synergies higher than previously expected.

Performance was hindered by commercial vehicle hire company Northgate whose strategy is being overhauled by new management; this resulted in earnings downgrades that disappointed the market. International consultancy firm RPS issued a profit warning, reporting higher costs and weaker trading in their Energy division. More generally, the broader pull-back in markets hurt several share prices. Among the poorer performers were filters and packaging products manufacturer Essentra, neighbourhood retailer McColl's and Keller, a global ground engineering business.

Gearing

The Fund's Ord shares are geared by the capital entitlement of the ZDP shares which will rise continuously until the planned winding up date of 1 July 2024. The net gearing figure shown in the Key Fund information section is the percentage by which the total value of investments exceeds the total net assets.

Hurdle rates & redemption yields

Data sources & calculations

All data supplied by Aberforth, except NSCI (XIC) data (from Numis/Paul Marsh and Elroy Dimson – London Business School) and FTSE data (from FTSE International Limited).

Active share is a measure of how the Fund's portfolio differs from the NSCI (XIC). Small companies are represented by the NSCI (XIC). Large companies are represented by the FTAS.

Risk warnings

Capital may be at risk as the value of investments may go down as well as up and is not guaranteed; therefore investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance, or a reliable indicator of future results or performance.

Investments in shares of smaller companies are generally considered to carry a higher degree of risk as the market for their shares may be less liquid than that for shares of larger companies, making shares of smaller companies more difficult to buy and sell.

The performance of shares of smaller companies may be more volatile than the shares of larger companies over short time periods; therefore investors should regard such investments as long term.

There can be no guarantee that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved or provide the dividends and returns sought by the Fund.

An investment trust is a public limited company, the shares of which are traded on the Main Market of the London Stock Exchange. Accordingly, the ability of shareholders to sell their shares will be dependent on the market price of the shares. The shares may trade at a discount or premium to their net asset value.

Investment trusts may borrow money in order to make further investments. This is known as gearing. The effect of gearing can enhance returns to shareholders in rising markets but will have the opposite effect on returns in falling markets.

The Fund's Ordinary shares (Ords) are geared by the Zero Dividend Preference shares (ZDPs) and rank for repayment of capital after the ZDPs and any creditors of the Fund. A positive net asset value for the Ords will be dependent upon the Fund's assets being sufficient to meet the prior capital entitlements of the holders of the ZDPs. The Ords should therefore be regarded as carrying above average risk. The ZDPs are not a protected or guaranteed investment. In particular, should the Fund be wound up prior to its planned winding up date, holders of ZDPs would only receive their accrued capital entitlement to the date of winding up - which would be less than the final anticipated capital entitlement of the ZDPs.
