Monthly investment commentary: November

The successive Covid-19 vaccine announcements of November led to strong performances across global stockmarkets. Seeing light at the end of the pandemic's tunnel, the FTSE All-Share rose by 12.7% and the NSCI (XIC) by 11.9%. After a particularly challenging period for the value style, new-found optimism about recovery saw a decisive rotation towards both value and "smaller smalls". The accommodating backdrop helped the Fund return 19.3%.

At the stock level, the theme was one of emerging interest in the 'coronavirus victims'. As economic prospects were reconsidered, holdings in the Financial Services and Travel & Leisure sectors responded particularly encouragingly. The Fund participated in an equity raise by gaming and entertainment operator Rank Group that went on to contribute strongly. Specialist lender International Personal Finance refinanced and demonstrated continued improvement in collection trends as competitors retreated from the market. Conversely, those holdings which proved defensive through the early stages of the crisis detracted from returns during the month. This held back returns from Anglo Pacific, a natural resource royalty company, and telecoms operator Zegona Communications.

Elsewhere in the NSCI (XIC), there was more evidence that the backdrop of historically low UK valuations is attracting the attention of corporate and private equity acquirers. The month saw non-holdings Elementis subject to a possible offer by a US listed competitor and Urban&Civic, a developer of land for housing, subjected to an agreed bid. As at the end of November, 17 acquisitions for companies within the NSCI (XIC) had been completed during 2020 and a further 10 offers or approaches were outstanding. This is the highest level of interest observed since 2015, the year before the EU referendum.

Gearing

The Fund's Ord shares are geared by the capital entitlement of the ZDP shares which will rise continuously until the planned winding up date of 1 July 2024. The net gearing figure shown in the Key Fund information section is the percentage by which the total value of investments exceeds the total net assets.

Hurdle rates & redemption yields

The Fund's latest hurdle rates and redemption yields are available from the AIC website at www.theaic.co.uk; select Statistics, then ZDP Analytics.

Data sources & calculations

All data supplied by Aberforth, except NSCI (XIC) data (from Numis/Paul Marsh and Elroy Dimson – London Business School) and FTSE data (from FTSE International Limited).

Performance returns are total returns after all expenses and assume reinvestment of dividends. Yield is based on the Fund's trailing 12 months' dividends (excluding Specials). Active share is a measure of how the Fund's portfolio differs from the NSCI (XIC). Small companies are represented by the NSCI (XIC). Large companies are represented by the FTAS.

Risk warnings

COVID-19 virus – in the context of market price risk, please note the exceptional circumstances arising from the COVID-19 pandemic and the responses to it. These have profoundly affected macro-economic activity, the operations of companies around the world and their stockmarket valuations. The universe of UK small quoted companies market invested in by the Fund, has seen a significant fall in its aggregate valuation due to the uncertainties arising from the spread of this virus. Aberforth Partners LLP and the Directors of Aberforth Split Level Income Trust plc are closely monitoring market developments as the impact of the pandemic progresses.

Capital may be at risk as the value of investments may go down as well as up and is not guaranteed; therefore investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance, nor a reliable indicator of future results or performance.

Investments in shares of smaller companies are generally considered to carry a higher degree of risk as the market for their shares may be less liquid than that for shares of larger companies, making shares of smaller companies more difficult to buy and sell.

The performance of shares of smaller companies may be more volatile than the shares of larger companies over short time periods; therefore investors should regard such investments as long term.

There can be no guarantee that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved or provide the dividends and returns sought by the Fund.

An investment in the Fund is only suitable for investors who are capable of evaluating the merits and risks of such an investment and who have sufficient resources to be able to bear any losses which may arise from such an investment (which may be equal to the whole amount invested). Such an investment should be regarded as long term in nature and complementary to existing investments in a range of other financial assets and should not form a major part of an investment portfolio.

An investment trust is a public limited company, the shares of which are traded on the Main Market of the London Stock Exchange. Accordingly, the ability of shareholders to sell their shares will be dependent on the market price of the shares. The shares may trade at a discount or premium to their net asset value.

Investment trusts may borrow money in order to make further investments. This is known as gearing. The effect of gearing can enhance returns to shareholders in rising markets but will have the opposite effect on returns in falling markets.

The Fund's Ordinary shares (Ords) are geared by the Zero Dividend Preference shares (ZDPs) and rank for repayment of capital after the ZDPs and any creditors of the Fund. A positive net asset value for the Ords will be dependent upon the Fund's assets being sufficient to meet the prior capital entitlements of the holders of the ZDPs. The Ords should therefore be regarded as carrying above average risk. The ZDPs are not a protected or guaranteed investment. In particular, should the Fund be wound up prior to its planned winding up date, holders of ZDPs would only receive their accrued capital entitlement to the date of winding up - which would be less than the final anticipated capital entitlement of the ZDPs.
