Objective

The Fund's objective is to achieve a total return greater than that of the DNSCI (XIC) over the long term by investing in a diversified portfolio of small UK quoted companies.

Investment style: Value

Aberforth are value investors who buy shares in companies that they calculate to be selling below their intrinsic value. This is determined through detailed financial and industrial analysis, combined with a valuation approach that focuses on both stockmarket and corporate worth.

Investment performance (annualised total returns)

Monthly investment commentary: May

Global equity markets rose during the month amid hopes of an easing of trade tensions. UK equities followed the trend and the FTSE All-Share generated a return of 4.1%. The market was enthused about the UK's trade deals and by the Bank of England's decision to cut rates. This propelled the more domestically oriented small companies captured in the DNSCI (XIC) to a gain of 7.2%. Encouragingly, the "smaller smalls" participated in the rebound but style mattered little over the month. Influenced also by the fortunes of individual stocks, the Fund's return was 9.7%.

Turning to stocks, Rank Group was boosted by the Government's land-based casino reforms. These allow for a significant increase in the number of gaming machines per casino licence and provide an attractive additional revenue opportunity for the company. Elsewhere, Bakkavor continued its positive run after announcing a recommended cash-and-shares offer by Greencore. Meanwhile, amid the easing of worries about tariffs for UK companies, Senior staged a strong recovery. Jupiter Fund Management out-performed the rising market following an announced cost savings plan.

However, relative performance was hindered by stocks that lagged the rising market. Wilmington's shares were flat, meaning it was a relative loser – there was no company-specific news. Similarly, and given lingering concerns about the weak recruitment markets, shares in Robert Walters did not participate in the broad market rally. Finally, EnQuest was weak despite the more stable oil price and an in-line trading statement. The damage had been done to the shares early in May as the company dropped out of a possible deal with AIM-listed peer Serica Energy.

Sector exposure

Size exposure

Gearing

The Fund has a bank debt facility of £130m available for use as gearing by the Manager at any time. The net gearing/(liquidity) figure shown in the Key Fund information section indicates the percentage by which the total value of investments exceeds the total net assets.

Continuation vote & share buy-backs

The continuation of the Fund is voted on by shareholders at every 3rd AGM. The next vote will occur at the AGM in March 2026.

The Fund operates a share buy-back policy. A list of the buy-back transactions during the last 5 years is available at www.aberforth.co.uk.

Data sources & calculations

All data supplied by Aberforth, except DNSCI (XIC) data (from Deutsche Numis/Paul Marsh and Elroy Dimson – London Business School) and FTSE data (from FTSE International Limited).

Performance returns are total returns after all expenses and assume reinvestment of dividends. Yield is based on the Fund's trailing 12 months' dividends (excluding Specials). Active share is a measure of how the Fund's portfolio differs from the DNSCI (XIC). Small companies are represented by the DNSCI (XIC). Large companies are represented by the FTAS.

Risk warnings

Capital may be at risk as the value of investments may go down as well as up and is not guaranteed; therefore investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance, nor a reliable indicator of future results or performance.

Investments in shares of smaller companies are generally considered to carry a higher degree of risk as the market for their shares may be less liquid than that for shares of larger companies, making shares of smaller companies more difficult to buy and sell.

The performance of shares of smaller companies may be more volatile than the shares of larger companies over short time periods; therefore investors should regard such investments as long term.

There can be no guarantee that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved or provide the returns sought by the Fund.

An investment in the Fund is only suitable for investors who are capable of evaluating the merits and risks of such an investment and who have sufficient resources to be able to bear any losses which may arise from such an investment (which may be equal to the whole amount invested). Such an investment should be regarded as long term in nature and complementary to existing investments in a range of other financial assets and should not form a major part of an investment portfolio.

An investment trust is a public limited company, the shares of which are traded on the main market of the London Stock Exchange. Accordingly, the ability of shareholders to sell their shares will be dependent on the market price of the shares. The shares may trade at a discount or premium to their net asset value.

Investment trusts may borrow money in order to make further investments. This is known as gearing. The effect of gearing can enhance returns to shareholders in rising markets but will have the opposite effect on returns in falling markets.
