Objective

The Fund's objective is to achieve a total return greater than that of the DNSCI (XIC) over the long term by investing in a diversified portfolio of small UK quoted companies.

Investment style: Value

Aberforth are value investors who buy shares in companies that they calculate to be selling below their intrinsic value. This is determined through detailed financial and industrial analysis, combined with a valuation approach that focuses on both stockmarket and corporate worth.

Investment performance (annualised total returns)

Monthly investment commentary: August

Global equity markets rose in August as a tonal shift from the Federal Reserve increased optimism about interest rate cuts in September. US and European indices ended the month near all-time highs. In the UK, globally exposed large caps participated in the rally, while the more domestic-focused mid and small caps underperformed. The FTSE All-Share was up by 0.9%, while the benchmark DNSCI (XIC) was down by 1.2% and the Fund by 3%.

Videndum fell sharply following the release of its interim results. Trading is still weak, with film and TV production yet to recover to pre Hollywood strike levels. The company's balance sheet remains burdened by debt and a refinancing is required before August next year. Rank gave back part of its strong recent performance despite reiterating guidance on trading. The weakness was likely due to speculation about higher taxes on the UK gambling sector, as well as some profit-taking. Crest Nicholson was also weak on no company-specific news. It fell along with other housebuilders against a backdrop of 'higher-for-longer' mortgage costs.

Vesuvius was the main relative winner among the Fund's holdings. Its interim results offered reassurance following the poor reaction to its July trading update. The company subsequently announced the acquisition of the 'Molten Metals Systems' business from another Fund holding, Morgan Advanced Materials. This looks like a good deal for both parties.

The theme of M&A appetite for UK companies appears to have survived the quieter holiday period. August saw a recommended bid by Unite for Empiric Student Property, a small holding in the fund, and an approach for JTC, which is not a holding.

Sector exposure

Size exposure

Gearing

The Fund has a bank debt facility of £130m available for use as gearing by the Manager at any time. The net gearing/(liquidity) figure shown in the Key Fund information section indicates the percentage by which the total value of investments exceeds the total net assets.

Continuation vote & share buy-backs

The continuation of the Fund is voted on by shareholders at every 3rd AGM. The next vote will occur at the AGM in March 2026.

The Fund operates a share buy-back policy. A list of the buy-back transactions during the last 5 years is available at www.aberforth.co.uk.

Data sources & calculations

All data supplied by Aberforth, except DNSCI (XIC) data (from Deutsche Numis/Paul Marsh and Elroy Dimson – London Business School) and FTSE data (from FTSE International Limited).

Performance returns are total returns after all expenses and assume reinvestment of dividends. Yield is based on the Fund's trailing 12 months' dividends (excluding Specials). Active share is a measure of how the Fund's portfolio differs from the DNSCI (XIC). Small companies are represented by the DNSCI (XIC). Large companies are represented by the FTAS.

Risk warnings

Capital may be at risk as the value of investments may go down as well as up and is not guaranteed; therefore investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance, nor a reliable indicator of future results or performance.

Investments in shares of smaller companies are generally considered to carry a higher degree of risk as the market for their shares may be less liquid than that for shares of larger companies, making shares of smaller companies more difficult to buy and sell.

The performance of shares of smaller companies may be more volatile than the shares of larger companies over short time periods; therefore investors should regard such investments as long term.

There can be no guarantee that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved or provide the returns sought by the Fund.

An investment in the Fund is only suitable for investors who are capable of evaluating the merits and risks of such an investment and who have sufficient resources to be able to bear any losses which may arise from such an investment (which may be equal to the whole amount invested). Such an investment should be regarded as long term in nature and complementary to existing investments in a range of other financial assets and should not form a major part of an investment portfolio.

An investment trust is a public limited company, the shares of which are traded on the main market of the London Stock Exchange. Accordingly, the ability of shareholders to sell their shares will be dependent on the market price of the shares. The shares may trade at a discount or premium to their net asset value.

Investment trusts may borrow money in order to make further investments. This is known as gearing. The effect of gearing can enhance returns to shareholders in rising markets but will have the opposite effect on returns in falling markets.

Further information on the Fund, including the Key Information Document, is available on request or via the Aberforth website www.aberforth.co.uk.
