Monthly investment commentary: September

Equity markets remained strong through September. US equities out-performed, with the tech-heavy Nasdaq leading returns. The UK's FTSE All-Share was up by 1.9%. The Fund rose by 1.0%, while small companies in the form of the DNSCI (XIC) rose by 2.7%. Within the latter index, it was small growth stocks that performed best and so the Fund's value style was a headwind to relative performance.

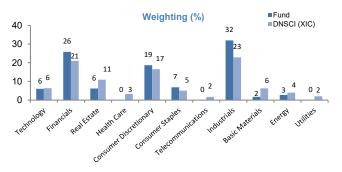

Detractors included brewer and drinks distributor C&C Group. A trading update confirmed that the business is on track to achieve profits as guided but highlighted contingency on the "all-important" Christmas trading period. Hilton Food Group fell sharply after downgrading profit guidance for the full year in response to input cost inflation within its seafood division. Bakkavor, another Food Producer, fell on weakness in Greencore shares, which is set to take over Bakkavor in a cash and equity deal. Wilmington was weaker following full year results that showed lacklustre organic growth amid pressures on US healthcare event attendance.

Turning to the winners, Galliford Try again out-performed expectations as the business benefits from robust demand for its building and infrastructure services. This helped fund a 17% increase in the final dividend and a fresh £10m share buy-back. Jupiter Fund Management continued its significant share price recovery as the market digests the impact of July's acquisition of CCLA Investment Management. Wickes was also strong following interim results that evidenced continued market share gains within its DIY-exposed 'Retail' category.

Risk warnings

Capital may be at risk as the value of investments may go down as well as up and is not guaranteed; therefore investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance, nor a reliable indicator of future results or performance.

Investments in shares of smaller companies are generally considered to carry a higher degree of risk as the market for their shares may be less liquid than that for shares of larger companies, making shares of smaller companies more difficult to buy and sell.

The performance of shares of smaller companies may be more volatile than the shares of larger companies over short time periods; therefore investors should regard such investments as long term.

There can be no guarantee that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved or provide the dividends and returns sought by the Fund.

An investment in the Fund is only suitable for investors who are capable of evaluating the merits and risks of such an investment and who have sufficient resources to be able to bear any losses which may arise from such an investment (which may be equal to the whole amount invested). Such an investment should be regarded as long term in nature and complementary to existing investments in a range of other financial assets and should not form a major part of an investment portfolio.

An investment trust is a public limited company, the shares of which are traded on the Main Market of the London Stock Exchange. Accordingly, the ability of shareholders to sell their shares will be dependent on the market price of the shares. The shares may trade at a discount or premium to their net asset value.

Investment trusts may borrow money in order to make further investments. This is known as gearing. The effect of gearing can enhance returns to shareholders in rising markets but will have the opposite effect on returns in falling markets.

The Fund's Ordinary shares (Ords) are geared by the Zero Dividend Preference shares (ZDPs) and rank for repayment of capital after the ZDPs and any creditors of the Fund. A positive net asset value for the Ords will be dependent upon the Fund's assets being sufficient to meet the prior capital entitlements of the holders of the ZDPs. The Ords should therefore be regarded as carrying above average risk. The ZDPs are not a protected or guaranteed investment. In particular, should the Fund be wound up prior to its planned winding up date, holders of ZDPs would only receive their accrued capital entitlement to the date of winding up - which would be less than the final anticipated capital entitlement of the ZDPs.

This document has been issued for information purposes only. It does not contain any investment recommendations or an invitation to invest in the Fund. Investors should seek advice from an authorised financial adviser prior to making investment decisions.
